MUAY THAI LEGEND

From past to present, Muay Thai played various roles in saving the country. There were records of Thai Kings and court officers with martial arts expertise, disguising themselves to take part in public competitions to test and showcase their skills. This includes "Phra Chao Suea" or King Sanphet VIII, King Taksin the Great, Phraya Pichai "The Broken Sword", and Kru Dok from Wisaedchaicharn District. When Thailand lost its capital to Burma, the name "Nai Khanom Tom" appeared as a Muay Thai teacher from Ayutthaya who was rounded up into slavery, but then fought and won against Burmese boxers multiple times, displaying the greatness of Muay Thai.

In the late Ayutthaya period, there was the establishment of two institutions Krom Tanai Luek and Krom Tum Ruad Luang to provide security for the Kings and the royal family. There were martial arts training in Muay Thai and Persian style wrestling (Iranian), and a large number of Muay Thai teachers and boxers joined civil service. They went on to display their skills in royal court competitions, including in front of the royal palace in many festivals throughout history. It is worth noting that the national liberation army assembled by King Taksin the Great consisted entirely of numerous famed Muay Thai teachers and boxers from that era. Three main special warfare divisions were established: Tanai Luek division, Teacher Division, and Kaew Jinda Division. All of them had accomplished an important mission, which eliminated the fear against Burmese from Thai people, at the battle in Bang Kaew, Ratchaburi. Hence, it can be said that Muay Thai led to national liberation.

Muay Thai prospered during the early Ratanakosin period, hitting the zenith of popularity during the reign of King Rama V. The King practiced Muay Thai and sanctioned Muay Thai competitions in front of the royal palace by selecting talented boxers from many regions to compete and then bestowing official titles. The King also ordered the Department of Education to include Muay Thai as a compulsory subject in the institute for physical education teacher. Competition were held regularly up until the reign of King Rama VI at Suan kularb (Rose garden) Palace. These competitions included bouts between Muay Thai boxers as well as between Muay Thai boxers and foreign fighters. In a competition that was held during the reign of King Rama VI between an oversea Chinese Kung Fu practitioner named Ji Chang and Young Harnthalay (The number one apprentice of Prince Chumporn Khedudomsak). There was the application Korat-style stance, which emphasized on standing upright in preparation for both attack and defense using the feet, punch, and throw. The stance eventually became a model for the training of Muay Thai in the majority of institutes for physical education.

During the early reign of King Rama VII, Muay Thai boxers wrapped their hands with rope until Pae Leangprasert, a Tha Sao boxer from Uttaradit, punched a foreign boxer named Chamnien to death. From then on, boxers switched to using western-styled boxing gloves. Soon afterward, regulations were put in place and the first standardized boxing stadiums – Lumpini Stadium and Ratchadamnoen Stadium – and Muay Thai competitions have been held there up till this day.

The word “Muay Thai” was coined during the era after the B.E. 2475 (A.D. 1932) revolution in order to keep in line nationalism policy at the time when Lieutenant Commander Luang Suphachalasai was the director of the Physical Education Department. There was also the establishment of the “Boxing Act”. “Muay Thai” was referred to different names depending on the region, including “Muay Korat, Muay Chaiya, Muay Tha Sao, Muay Lopburi, etc.” There were many other unrecorded local “Muay” in other areas as well.

In the year B.E. 2554 (A. D. 2011) the Ministry of Culture resolved to establish February 6th of each year as ‘Muay Thai Day’. This was based on the coronation day of King Sanphet VIII or “Phra Chao Suea, for the important role he played in Muay Thai training, as well as his other historical affiliation with Muay Thai. But some historians recorded that there is another important character worth remembering - “Nai (Mr.) Khanomtom”. However, his story cannot be factually verified with historical records. A guru also proposed that the day King Taksin the Great liberated Thailand should be considered as well because he was highly talented in Muay Thai and had assembled the largest number of Muay Thai boxers under his service. Additionally, records made by Chinese boxers who came to train in Muay Thai stated that an important Muay Thai teacher was Pra Arjarn Thammachote of Bang Rajan village who had also assembled a large number of Muay Thai boxers.

THA-LAAI-PUU-PAA

The Attacker : Deliver a low sweeping kick at the defender.

The Defender : Spin around and thrust kick into the first attacker's chest.

The way in which Maemai Muay Thai is understood in a classical lore sense is different from how it is practiced. General training will deploy hands, feet, knees, elbows, and thrust kick continuously. The pictures displayed here are only part of what have been divided into Muay Thai offensive tactics as well as tactics to counter punches, kicks, knees, elbows.

PRANG-SAT-TRU

When the opponent punches and misses the target,
hit him in the neck with the forearm or elbow,
push him down with the force from the hit, and knee him on the chin or chest.

CHERE-KANG

During a left guard stance, pull your right feet together with your left, jump and throw a double knees at the opponent's chin while also throwing a double elbows at his face. Increase the power of the attack by throwing your arms back during the jump.

YORK-NANG

Use when the opponent is rushing toward or punching at you. Use the right knee, bending the leg to the left, then spin to the left while swinging the knee to opponent's ribs.

APRIL - JUNE

GWANG-LEN-PONG

Use left guard stance. Perform a jumping right kick to the chin to open up the opponent's guard and immediately followed by another left kick before landing on the ground.

GINARY-LEN-NUM

Dodge the opponent's right punch by spinning and slipping under his punch. Then use your left arm to lock his head between your armpit, pull his head down and strike his face with your left heel.

JULY - SEPTEMBER

WANORN-HUG-DAN

A punching style that is used by swinging a punch from right to left at the jaw or ribs similar to an overhead punch.

TOURISM AUTHORITY OF THAILAND
OVERSEAS OFFICES

The Tourism Authority of Thailand (TAT) was established on 18th March 1960. It was the first organization in Thailand to be specifically responsible for the promotion of tourism. TAT supplies information and data on tourist areas to the general public, publicizes Thailand with the intention of encouraging both Thai and international tourists to travel in and around the country in many aspects, accelerates and supports the development and promotion of tourism technological systems i.e. e-Tourism or digital marketing, as well as co-operates with and supports the production and development of personnel in the field of tourism.
